Despite the warning, Otta-Despite the warning, Otta-wa postal clerks and mail sorters represented by the union were off the jobs today. Vancouver postal workers staged an illegal 24-hour works, stoppage Monday to back CUPW's demand for suspen-sion of all further tech-nological change until the dis-pute over current changes has pute over current changes has been resolved.

Peter Whitaker, Vancouver local president, said the union was under attack by the government and members would walk out again if necessary to protect job security and work-ing conditions.

He said the 600 members voted about 85 per cent in favor of a Canada-wide series of softating strikes to protest methods used in introducing labor-saving technological change in the postal department.

But Blais told reporters Monday that Vancouver post office officials have been in-structed to seek injunctions that would prevent further work stoppages there.

Joe Davidson, president of the 23,000-member union, said Blais has adopted "sort of a tough-man attitude without really knowing all the facts."

He said the post office should not introduce any tech-nological changes until both parties have negotiated an agreement on the proposed change or a special adjudica-tion board has handed down a binding decision. Until that condition was met the illegal strikes would continue.

But Blais flatly rejected that demand Monday, saying "mechanization has to go in and we have guaranteed to the workers that there is not going to be any detrimental effect as a result of technological change." The contract signed last December after a seven-week strike requires a minimum of 120 days notice of technological change and consul-tation on programs to elimi-nate adverse effects of change. If agreement is not reached the change in dispute then would be considered by a special three-member ad-judication committee whose decision would be binding on both parties.

However, there is no guar-120-day consultation period will be extended if a dispute is not settled within that time. Davidson said Blais has "spotted the little loophole that was left in the contract" and is using it to break the spirit of the agreement regarding technological change.

The contract "does not say in black and white" that there should be agreement before changes are introduced. "But that was the intent of it," Davidson said.

Blais and Treasury Board President Robert Andras de-nied union claims that the post office has broken contract commitments.

However, Davidson said the post office has violated the contract with regard to se-niority rights and James San-dall, president of the London, local of CUPW, said Monday that Blais is deceitful antees are being met.

LONDON (UPD) - Rightwing leader Enoch Powell called on the British government Monday to pay one million Asian and African immigrants $1,700 apiece to leave Britain.

Canada's Prison Mentality

For a country that jails more of its citizens per capita than almost any other Western nation Canadians have a curious attitude towards their penal system. In a sentence: we don't want to hear about our prisons or their inhabitants. Forced to focus on the issue because of riots or hostage taking, we stamp.our feet, demand the government do something and complain about the nervy attitude of inmates who dare to cause trouble

In the wake of the eighth hostagetaking incident in 19 months at the B.C. penitentiary last week it is obvious that something is terribly wrong with Canada's prison system. The abcess is so deep and so widespread that riots erupt almost simultaneously at two prisons more than 2,500 miles apart. It is also an interesting coment on the national character that most Canadians react to prison troubles by advocating heavier punishments for those who would buck a system that is mindless, dehumanized and antiquated. It is exactly this process that has led to many of the current confrontations.

This in no way implies that prisoners responsible for destroying up to 300 cells in the east wing of the B.C. penitentiary - damages to plumbing alone amount to more than $250,000 - should go unpunished. If our system of laws is to have any meaning people must be responsible for their acts. Wanton vandalism is a crime in any civilized society. whether it takes place in a park or a

As to the prisoners' argument that this was the only way to attract public attention to their plight, there is probably a grain of truth in such a statement. In prison, alternatives are severely limited. A dramatic engineered stunt as opposed to a list of serious grievances unfortunately produces more impact on press and public in this decade of voyeurism.

If any one thing about the B.C. pen confrontation sticks out it is the relation between guards and inmates. Prisoners are literally terrified of their keepers. Gripes against jailers are a natural thing for prisoners; that is the nature of such a system. But the fears expressed by the B.C. pen inmates last week was unnatural and deserves minute examination through an independent inquiry.

That this fear of the guards is real was demonstrated by the inmates' demand for the RCMP to remain on duty at the pen for two weeks following a settlement. Then the matter would once again be negotiated. Even such an impartial observer as Provincial Conservative leader Dr. Scott Wallace, who was a member of the prison's citizens committee, remarked about the fear expressed by the inmates towards their keepers. Then when we remember the beatings administered to Kingston prisoners by their guards following a riot two years ago - beatings that were well documented in a subsequent inquiry and the mixup of the guns following Mary Steinhauser's death, it becomes plain that prison guards are not entirely righteous either. Underpaid, overworked and dealing with some of the most vicious elements in Canadian society, guards can still not be excused for adopting the tactics of their

Another question, and perhaps the precipitating agent in these troubles. is why do we continue to lock people up in 98-year-old prisons? In the aftermath of this latest incident Justice Minister Ron Basford wrings his hands and wails about obsolescent facilities. What has this administration been doing about the problem this last eight years? the answer is very little. And there is also the very real problem that few communities want a capable of running its own penal prison in their midst. No one wants to system, perhaps it's time to ask for take any responsibility.

So where are we after this latest wound has received the customary band-aid? The politicians are bleating, the guards are threatening mass resignations because they feel the government bowed to prisoners, and the inmates are hinting that it could happen again any time. The usual tautologies will unwind in the press until they are forgotten or the next uprising takes place.

Meanwhile, the government should not back down on its negotiated settlement with B.C. pen inmates, despite threats from the guards. If need be, the RCMP or the armed forces can once more be pressed into service. Then the government should institute an exhaustive independent inquiry into the causes of hostility between various kinds of prison workers and inmates. Such an inquiry should focus on what training guards receive and what attracts them to this kind of work. While all this is going on, Ottawa should get off its rhetorical butt and build smaller maximum security prisons immediately. The B.C. pen is 98 years of age and Laval is 106. Apcient and overcrowded, these fortresses provide little rehabilitation or even the psychological ambience necessary for hope.

Perhaps it's time inmates were allowed to run their own affairs within prisons under supervision. It is not that radical an idea. After all people are incarcerated for punishment. Are we also to punish them again once they are behind bars with indignities and beatings? Not only would such an enlightened system foster responsibility, it would force prisoners to organize themselves into a miniature society and consider their actions in terms of the whole prison populace. Since the government appears in-

Danger In BNA Deadlock

TORONTO - The failure of the provincial premiers to agree on a constitutional amending formula at their conference here was widely expected but it does not mean that the age-old problem of bringing the British North America Act home is ain at a dead end.

If Prime Minister Trudeau is as deterhistory books as the man who patriated the constitution, then the premiers have brought that great day considerably closer, because what the premiers did here, in a typically confused way, was to force the prime minister's hand.

Trudeau began this exercise by asking the premiers last March for their reaction to three—possibly four, depending on how one interprets his letter of March 31 alternatives on the patriation problem. The premiers have replied with at least two more alternatives, depending on how one counts, but none of them goes to the crux of the matter, which is the amending formula. On that key aspect, the premiers have told Trudeau in effect to act un-

Horse Trading

It is a popular interpretarion that the premiers put forward their alternatives by way of "raising the ante" - that is, that they are bargaining so far accepted as their price for agreeing to patriation and to the kind of amending formula which the federal government — and indeed, eight of he 10 provinces - want.

Some of the premiers, notably Premier Robert Bourassa, encouraged this interpretation by assuring the press that Quebec would not consent to patriation without agreement both on an amending formula and on constitutional changes expanding provincial jurisdiction in the areas of culture, communications, appointmnets and organization of the supreme court of Canada, spending powers and Senate representation, bears no relation to the facts. In the first place, the BNA Act can be brought home as it stands without the consent of Quebee or any other province. All the Canadianparliament has to do is ask the British parliament to renounce forever its right to amend the act, and enact the same legislation as a Canadian statue. That would constitute "patriation" and it is the first alternative (and the least desirable one, because it could be done without provincial Younger. — M. P. Cedar Hill X Road.

In the second place, the premiers have given Trudeau nothing to bargain over. They have not said to him: give us want, because Premier Lougheed has made it crystal clear, if little else is, that he will never accept the formula.

Lougheed insists that amendments affecting provincial rights and powers must have the consent of all provinces, while Trudeau and most of the premiers (B.C.'s Bill Bennett is a qualified dissident) are content with the "Victoria formula" namely, that amendments affecting some but not all provinces could be done by Ottawa with the consent of the provinces affecting while amendments affecting all provinces could be done by Ottawa with the maritime provinces and at least two western provinces containing 50 per cent or more of the population of all western

It is bootless to suppose Lougheed is bargaining and bluffing. He is now so committed to the unanimity rule on principle that he could not reverse him self without making himself the laughing-stock of the country. No doubt Trudeau will now listen provinces want, and he may even accept some of them for political appearances, but on the gut issue of patriation the premiers have left him with only three op-

One is to bring the constitution home with the Victoria formula (and such other substantive changes as may be agreed to) written in. If he sticks by his offer of March 31 in this respect, this would mean the amending formula would not be come operative until the legislatures of all the provinces had approved it, and in the meantime any amendments touching provincial powers would require unanius provincial consent.

In view of Lougheed's position, this would mean the Alberta legislature would not approve and unanimity on constitutional changes touching the provinces would be required until, perhaps, some future government of Alberta took a dif-

The second option is to patriate with the Victoria formula written in, on condition that it becomes operative when its intrinsic conditions are met, that is to say, when it is approved by parliament and the legislatures of Ontaro, Quebec, two of the Atlantic provinces and two western provinces continaing 50 per cent or more of the west's population (subject, perhaps to changes to meet B.C.'s position). This, undoubtedly, is what most premiers privately expect Trudeau to do.

The third possibility, and this clearly is what Lougheed expects Trudeau to do, is to patriate without any amending formula attached. Lougheed likes this because he thinks it will mean no amendments touching provincial powers will then be possible without unanimous provincial consent, and he even claimed to the press here that Trudeau conceded as much in his letter of last March 31.

In fact, a close reading of that docu ment will reveal Trudeau conceded no such thing, and Lougheed's interpretation is not necessarily the correct one. If the BNA Act is converted from a British to a agreement on how it is then to be changed it will be a federal statute and vulnerable to such changes as the federal govern ment, in its wisdom, may wish to make

If those changes affected provincal rights and powers, it would be open to the provinces to challenge their constitutionality in the courts and the question would then arise as to what constitu-

It may well be, as Lougheed obviously thinks, that the courts would rule that such changes could not be made without unous provincial consent, since the practice has been for many years now that the federal government has obtained unanimous consent before petitioning the British parliament to make such changes.

But it might also be that the courts would rule that this practice was mere custom and convention, as Trudeau held it to be in his letter of March 31, and not legally required. Depending on how in-novative the supreme court of the time might be, the nature of the issue and other circumstances, the unanimity "rule" could be lost in history.

It is a real possibility that few provincial governments have considered, least of all Premier Lougheed. The Ontario-government is alive to it and extremely worried about it. Maybe Lougheed should

The British haven't been that generous to an American since Bobby Jones captured St. Andrews.

Even here last week at the United Nations, which is not Kissinger's hope for a disunited world, he was received with more respect than he has given to the United Nations in the past. #### Back to Land, But No Mud

In its old age North America yearns for the sticks. First it was the children, 10 years ago, chucking it all — the tailored threads and rat race and dad's suburban martini pitcher and two cars under the phoney carriage lamps; the bright lights and the swarming excitement of conurba-tions, chucking it all to find salvation in Goat's milk and trimming the kerosene wick and hoeing the radish patch. Reading by firelight. "The Whole Earth Catalogue," Herman Hesse, Thoreau — all those Pilgrim's Progresses of the old back-to-the-sticks faith preached by Rousseau and pioneered by the affluent society of the 18th century.

Parents and grandparents of this new generation of instant rubes were slow to catch on, which was natural. Many of them had lived the rustic life when there them had lived the rustic life when there was no alternative. Slopping the hogs is not apt to seem a spiritual experience to people who have never known the degradation of an expense account lunch. Marie Antoinette found joy in tending sheep, but full-size shepherds who had never danced at Versailles acquiesced in her will have the same than the same guillotining.

Romance, the better life, salvation: For this certified generation of baffled elders, these hopes were borne by the tinkle of a Cole Porter tune plucked out of tinkle of a Cole Porter tune plucked out of the air by the battery radio, and under the power of the prophet, Ford, they went to town. Now, they, too, yearn for the sticks. Consider the present U.S. election. Two candidates for president and two for vice-president, and all of them country boys. Jimmy Carter of Plains, Ga., Walter Mon-dale of Afton, Minn. Robert Dole of Rus-cell. Ken and Gerald Ford of Grand dale of Afton, Minn. Robert Dole of Russell, Kan. and Gerald Ford of Grand Rapids, which, while not exactly Possum's Crossroads, is not quite Detroit either.

The electorate, which watched in dismay when the children headed for the sticks in the 1960s, now marches in the footsteps of Rousseau and the future is in the hands of the country boys.

The notion that rustic life is good for the soul is not much older than Wordsworth. Certainly before Rousseau no one ever seriously argued that and briar scratches to the human condi-

recurring periods in which large numbers of people attribute special salvationary spiritual power to rural living.

This religious impulse is obviously at work in the present search for American political revival.

The sun belt may prosper on subsidies, but the old-time religion holds that only sin and damnation can result if government extends the dole to the slum belt. The sun belt is essentially rustic, too, while the slum belt is urban, and people are flocking to sun and outdoors like kids to the woods, in search of salvation.

None of the four candidates is an authentic country boy, of course. They are all country slickers. You have to be nowadays to get the citified yearners for the old mud-between-the-toes virtues to vote for you. The real thing might chill the yearning masses. The country music people learned that when they gussied up the real, down-home stuff with tricks learned at the

Devaney was interviewed before addressing the Victoria branch of the Sales and Marketing Executives Association at The Empress Monday

He said controls produce dislocations in the economy and add to the inflation problem by pushing up some costs. At the same time, growth is inhibited and this proves costly in the long run. "Controls can only be effective in a national emergency, such as war time, when ev-

In peacetime, controls are counter-productive, He predicted trade will soon be conducted on a bloc basis rather than by nations.

"North America is really a single entity as far as trade is concerned. We should begin thinking in terms of North Costs increase but compa-nies can't raise their prices to meet these costs. He said in cases where a company makes three major products and one of them is losing money, there is no way the price of that product can be increased to made it profitable if the company is making profits on the other two products. The regulatory board will simply say it can't give relief on one product line. It looks at the over-all profit level of the company.

$1 billion a year in salaries and overtime.

That means there is more than one federal employee for every 40 Canadian men, women and children. And the number of federal employees is increasing at about five percent a year — significantly faster than the population.

The federal public servants have learned to take care of themselves pretty well.

themselves pretty well.

They are the only large group of employees in Canada with a pension plan that is indexed to match increases in the cost of living.

The plan is about as according to the cost of living.

The plan is about as actuarily sound as is the Canadian dollar. No funds are set aside to cover the future pendion payout. It will have to come from tax dollars and will become an increasing burden in the years ahead.

The public servants look harden in the years ahead.

The public servants look after themselves in "small" ways as well.
For example, with the recent Ottawa transit strike wewere reminded that public servants who normally use public transit, but are forced to use their automobiles, can collect from the government for the additional cost.
They can claim nine cents a mile, plus 4.5 per cents for file, plus 4.5 per cents for very additional public ser-ice passenger they take to work.

The transit strike, which started on a Friday, was over by Monday so public servants can collect for only one day that they drove their own deal of money involved, due to the shortness of the strike, but it is a tough one to ad-but it is a tough one to administer.

In fact, we are told, two people in one department are busily trying to design a form that federal employees can use in applying for their transportation money, and one person has been designated in practically every government department as liaison personnel working with the big two.

It would be interesting to know how many man-days are used figuring out a way that public servants can col-that public servants can col-lect about 90 cents, on average, for the transit strike.

Ironically, no public service union demanded the transpor-tation item in a union contract. It was offered rather gratuitously by the bosses who are also public servants.

OTTAWA'S EMPLOYEES Work Halt No Answer: Bennett

Organized labor's Oct. 14 day of protest against federal anti-inflation measures will not be in the best interests of Canada, Premier Bill Bennett

The strange point is that there is a higher allowance for travelling in the U.S. than in Canada, despite the fact that meals and hotels are considerably cheaper south of the border. The car allowance is 19.5

canada, Premier Bili Bennett said Monday.

The premier, who said he will donate a day's pay to the United Way campaign as an "act of leadership"; said he supports the rights on individuals to protest.

But stopping work, Bennett indicated, is not the answer. The premier said he was making his donation in hopes of encouraging Canadian workers to do something "constructive."

Bennett siad the B.C. government has not decided if it will opt out of federal antiinflation program next April.
Under the agreement between B.C. and federal government, B.C. may either remain a part of the federal program or set up its own guidelines next April.

Prices and costs generally in Canada are beginning to stabilize, Bennett said, and because of the program, the federal government should be given the credit. He added, however, that the program has not yet achieved the desired results.

One of the problems is that many employers and employees have begun to rely on the federal anti-inflation board to settle their disputes in contract negotiations, using the federal guidelines as a maximum wage increase proposals, Bernett said.

(AP) — It was as if Minnesota cornerback Nate Allen had been in the Pittsburgh huddles Monday night. It seemed that no matter where the ball was, he was there too. One of his two interceptions and his fumble recovery he also had a blocked extra point eight and four yards by Chuck Foreman that gave the Vik-ings a 17-6 victory over the staggering Steelers in a National Football League game.

"I don't know now much

Parent, winner of two successive Vezina Trophies as the National Hockey League's top goalle, played in just 11 games last season and had a goal against systems of 2.4

games last season and had a goal against average of 2.34.

In the playoffs, his progress regressed and he had to be replaced after he gave up 27 goals in eight games.

Parent's loss came just three days before Thursday's regular season opener with New York Islanders, the Flyers chief rival in the Campbell Conference's Patrick Division.

Philadelphia lost the Stanley Cup in four successive games to Montreal last spring after winning back-to-back NHL titles.

With Parent sidelined, the Flyers will rely on Gary Inness or Wayne Stephenson. Stephenson, Parent's replacement last season, won 40 games in 66 starts.

However, last month Ste-phenson demanded the Flyers renegotiate his current thre year contract and missed 17 days of training camp.

Stephenson's first workout came Saturday and he has not seen any game action. Inness, acquired in a trade with Pittsburgh last season, probably will get the nod against the

WASHINGTON (WP)

Top officers of many leading American corporations Monday issued an unprecedented warning to the business community to help save the big cities of the U.S. from economic collapse.

A municipal task force of the Business Roundtable, organized several years ago to study problems faced by big business, called for "a broader, deeper commitment" from the corporate community to the plight of the cities as "simply, good business" to protect their own investments.

Specifically, the Business Roundtable advocated that "corporations lend manpower and equipment to cities for constitute a critical national issue," with "declining tax bases, increasing crime, pollution, inadequate mass transportation, shortages of job opportunities, deteriorating school systems and the threat of tiscal insolvency" among the factors to be faced and conjected.

HumphreyIn FORD EXTENDS

President Ford signed into law Monday the massive tax revision bill which will affect every American taxpayer.

The bill extends for another full year personal income tax cuts voted last year to stimulate the economy, restricts the use of tax shelters, increases minimum taxes on the very wealthy and makes the first major change in taxing gifts and estates in 30 years. Its 28 chapters cover more than 1,000 pages.

The act extends tax cuts to talling nearly $18 billion a year. Its revenue-raising provisions would yield a net increase of $1.6 billion a year.

Loophole closings would actually produce $3 billion in revenue in the first year, but the new law gives $1.4 billion of that away, much of it for expanded child care tax breaks.

DEAR ROSE FANCIER:

As we sit here writing this column we can look out into our back yard and see our roses blooming away. Roses are not difficult to grow at all. They do best in the full sun, require ample water, well-desired soil vice in preganic drained soil rich in organic matter and a balanced food, preferably one specially for-open spot protected from the wind and cold drafts, where the plants can get at least five hours of full sun per day. Plant at least three feet apart.

Roses tolerate almost any type of soil from heavy clay to sand. However, they will give their best performance in a rich fibrous medium abundent with human or creaming.

Architectural details lift a house out of the ordinary. Most development houses keep these to a minimum be-cause they add to the building cost and generally they re-flect a personal taste. There-fore, unless you are building or remodelling, probably the house that you buy will have only the basic architectural

However, this could be an advantage, because you will find it easier to add to a structure than it is to take something away. An example is the dining room shown here, decorated by Carole Eichen. The back wall was completely plain, and the room was fairly small. Instead of placing a buffet there, which would erowd the room, the wall was treated architecturally.

ROSE DENIES 'PLOT'

LONDON (AP) — An English noblewoman pleaded not guilty Monday to charges that she participated in an alleged plot to smuggle a ton of marijuana resin from Morocco into the United States.

Lady Rose Delbray, 25, a professional antique restorer and daughter of the 9th Earl of Hardwicke, pleaded not guilty to a charge of illegally importing drugs.

Prosecutor Roy Amlot con-tended that a U.S. citizen, Herman Fine, was the ring-leader in the alleged plot, which began with Fine and Lady Delbray purchasing a 50-foot yacht named the Her-

2,016 pounds of cannabis resin purchased in Tangier, Amlot said. He said Fine and others sailed the Hermit to the United States while Lady Delbray returned to England.
Amlot said British customs alerted U.S. narcotics of-ficers, who watched the yacht arrive off Long Island, N.Y., saw it transfer drugs to an-other boat and arrested four persons when the second boat reached Stonington, Conn. The Hermit continued on to Bermuda, where another four

Doglift Costing $17,000

LONDON (CP) — Lady Beaverbrook, widow of the Canadian-born publisher, Max Canadian-born publisher, Max Aitken, is hiring an Air Carada jet for about $17,000 to take herself, her sister and two puppies from London to Halifax on Thursday.

An Air Canada spokesman, said Monday Lady Beaver-brook did not want to use a scheduled flight because the dogs would have to be carried in the baggage hold.

The dogs will fly with their mistress on a DC-8, which, the spokesman said, would have returned to Canada empty after bringing a charter party to Britain.

Auto Price Shuffles Kept Small

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) --Chrysler Canada Ltd., follow ing the lead of other major Canadian auto manufacturers, announced Monday it will generally hold the line on prices for its 1977-model passenger cars.

The company said there will be some upward and down-ward price moments but the over-all average will be the same as for the 1976 models.

It announced a reduction of $72 in the Chrysler Cordoba line and an increase of $80 in its top-selling compacts, the Volare and Aspen.

General Motors of Canada Ltd. announced similar price adjustments last week. Amer-ican Motors Canada Ltd. said it would raise its prices by average $56.

Experienced growers of the genus Gladiolus have their own particular way of lifting, drying and storing the corms. While all methods are basically the same, adjustments are made to suit the conditions one has for handling.

The corms vary in their ability to survive the winter outdoors, Due to intensive hybridizing many of the most desirable varieties have lost their resistance to cold wet soil and fail to appear the fol-

No Pleas Entered By Indians

NANAIMO - Four Indians charged with theft of files from the Chemainus band council offices had not guilty pleas entered for them when their trial opened Monday in county court.

The trial of Larry Seymour, Hamilton Seymour, Joe Sylvester and Steve Sampson is expected to last at least all this week. Defence lawyers will call about 30 witnesses from the Chemainus and Cowichan hands.

Charges were laid in June, 1975, after the Chemainus council offices were broken into.

On Monday about 30 members of the Cowichan band marched into the courtroom to protest the charges. The group attempted to challenge the right of the court to try the case.

But Judge Peter Millward ruled his court did have jurisdiction regardless of whether the incident occurred on Indian lands.

Horrors of Chile Told Before Death

WASHINGTON see people lying in the court-yard. Then I heard shots ... dry, single shots;" Orlando Letelier, the former Chilean defence minister, told Playboy magazine in an interview several months before he was killed Sept. 21 by a bomb in Washington, D.C.

In the interview, parts of which were released Monday, Letelier described how he came within moments of death after being arrested Sept. 11, 1973, as a political prisoner upon the overthrow of the Salvador Allende government in Chile:

"I couldn't see who was firing, but I would see persons being taken to a corner of the courtyard that was outside my line of sight. They would stay there six or seven min-utes, then I could see bodies being carried back.

"Just before 5 a.m., I heard soices say, 'Now it's the turn of the minister.' A half-hour later, the door to my room was opened and a sergeant told me to come along. One of the soldiers was carrying a small towel, and I realized that it was a blindfold . . . I didn't think back on my life; about the past, about my family. I was thinking about very immediate things, I was thinking that I didn't want to be made to lead to be made to kneel . . It all seemed very unreal to me that it was happening to me, but I had a clear rational notion that I would be execut-

Just as he reached the bot-tom of the stairs, Letelier told interviewer Tad Szulc, an of-ficer intervened and ordered Letelier returned to his room "One of the soldiers said to me, 'You're lucky, they won't give it to you, you bastard,' " he told Szulc."

Letelier's recollections of that day, and of torture and forced labor perpetrated on other prisoners, are excerpted from an article that will appear in the February 1977 issue of Playboy.

Letelier, 44, and an as-sociate, Ronni Karpen Moffitt, 25, were killed when the car he was driving exploded as it entered Sheridan Circle during the morning rush hour. An intensive police and FBI investigation into the bombing ontinues, but no arrests have

Many have blamed the bombing on the present Chi-lean government headed by Gen. Augusto Pinochet, Alsuccessor. Letelier. who had been stripped of his citizenship by Chile only days before his death, held a number of important positions in the Allende regime until he was captured in Santiago

Then followed 364 days of imprisonment, mostly on frig-id Dawson Island, just above Antarctica in the Straits of Magellan. After his release, Letelier came to Washington. He and Mrs. Moffitt were both employed at the Institute cent months to criticism of the Pinochet regime, and he was reportedly taking part in organizing a Chilean government in exile.

Chilean officials have de-nied any role in Letelier's death and said Monday they have co-operated fully with the FBI investigation.

In the interview, Letelier said that women prisoners were brought to Dawson Island aboard the Esmerelda, one of the Tall Ships that sailed in New York Harbor as part of the U.S. Bicentennial celebration July 4.

The women, Letelier said, were forced to parade naked in front of other prisoners and sailors, They were raped by

"Then they were taken below deck for electric-shock treatment to obtain confessions . . . In other cases, flesh wounds were inflicted on the prisoners, then rubbed with Forced labor and isolation from other prisoners were also regular tactics, Letelier said. On one occasion, when the International Red Cross inspected a prison camp, prisoners were kept up until 3 a.m. painting a new shed. Then, the next morning, they were taken to the beach to play soccer while the inspectors walked through.

attache to the Chilean Embassy here, said Monday that "no torture" of political prisoners had been employed by his government, and that no all were flown in.

Nick F. Stames, special agent in charge of the FBI field office here; said Monday there was "no reason to be-lieve" the bomb that killed Letelier and Moffitt had been telier's auto.

The FBI is still working on the fragments to determine precisely how the bomb func-tioned. Stames said the FBI does not know how or when the bomb was attached to Le-telior's auto.

washing with the elderly as "sick, sad, tired, dirty and ugly" and insist they will never be old them selves.

Such are the major conclu sions of a year-long study into children's attitudes to-wards the elderly by the Uni-versity of Maryland's Centre

Paradoxically, the children also view the elderly as "friendly, good and kind," but still consign them to a class of people who are "wrinkled, crippled, chew funny and haven't any teeth."

In an increasingly mobile society, children have limited contact with old people and only scant knowledge of what it means to be old, the study found, and youngsters' opin ion of the aged are frequently stereotyped.

The study was done under the direction of Richard Jantz and Carol Seefeldt of Maryland's Department of Early Childhood Education. Gradu-ate researchers Alice Galper and Kathy Serock conducted in-depth interviews with 180 children, ages three through 11, in Charles Courty, Md.

Gregory Merrill, research associate with the Retired Persons Association, called the study "probably the most sophisticated we've had yet" on children's attitudes to-wards the elderly.

No Pleas Entered By Indians

NANAIMO - Four Indians charged with theft of files rom the Chemainus band council offices had not guilty pleas entered for them when their trial opened Monday in county court. The trial of Larry Seymour, Hamilton Seymour, Joe Sylvester and Steve Sampson is expected to last at least all this week. Defence lawyers will call about 30 witnesses from the Chemainus and Cow-ichan bands.

Charges were laid in June, 1975, after the Chemainus council offices were broken

On Monday about 30 members of the Cowichan band marched into the court-room to protest the charges. The group attempted to challenge the right of the court to try the case.

But Judge Peter Millward ruled his court did have juris-diction regardless of whether the incident occurred on Indian lands.

The gladiolus corms are ready to lift as soon as the foliage loses its rich green coloring. The main pest is thrips which cause a streaking of the leaves. If present, all fo-liage should be cut off at soil level, removed from the area, and burned or scorched in a hot incinerator fire before lifting the corms. In any case, the foliage is removed before drying the corms.
